Experiments on Melons Shown at Hope Station

Farmers and farm leaders from Southwest Arkansas visited the Fruit and Truck Branch Experiment Station Thursday and Friday August 2 and 3, to observe the work being done on watermelons.

Over 110 were in attendance. The visitors saw fifty six different breeding lines of watermelons, both in the field and on display, as well as commercial lines varying in size from three pounds to seventy pounds when ripe. Many shapes and colors were on display. Some with yellow rinds and red flesh while others had a green rind with white flesh and red flesh.

Dr. V. M. Watts, Head of the Department of Horticulture and Forestry, University of Arkansas, College of Agriculture and Home Economics and breeder of the watermelon, presented an interesting discussion on the program of work at the station, including information on the new variety, "Whitehope" that was released last spring.

Dr. George Bradley, Assistant Horticulturist, University of Arkansas, College of Agriculture and Home Economics, brought the visitors up to date on the latest fertilizer work with watermelons. A disease control program was presented by Dr. J. P. Fulton, Associate Professor of Plant Pathology of the University of Arkansas, College of Agriculture and Home Economics. The control of insects injurious to watermelons and another topic of vital interest to the growers by Dr. T. F. Leigh, Assistant Entomologist, University of Arkansas, College of Agriculture and Home Economics. The old watermelons from the station's advanced breeding lines were enjoyed by all.

Marine Case Is Turned Over to Jury of Seven

By H. D. QUIGG
PARRIS ISLAND, S. C. (UP) — The case of Sgt. Matthew K. McKee, was turned over to a jury of seven combat officers today to decide whether he is guilty of manslaughter or the victim of an "unfortunate accident" in the death march drowning of six recruits.

The most celebrated military trial since that of Billy Mitchell was placed in the hands of the court at 2:30 p. m. EDT. McKee, 31, a former junior drill instructor from Worcester, Mass., who led a recruit platoon into a tidal creek in which six recruits drowned, was calm and imperturbable in the presence of an enlisted man.

His defense contends he was merely carrying out a tradition in leading his "ragged" platoon on a grueling night training march in the swamps of Parris island.

McKee's defense was Lt. Gen. Lewis B. (Chesty) Puller, who called the tragedy an "unfortunate accident" but defended the sergeant with all his strength for the type of training year was given by the platoon.

The law officer, Navy Capt. Irving N. Klein, ended the trial case of McKee, saying the law officer "told them to 'reach your findings according to the law, the evidence, and your own conscience'."

At the end of the 30-minute trial, McKee's defense was Lt. Gen. Lewis B. (Chesty) Puller, who called the tragedy an "unfortunate accident" but defended the sergeant with all his strength for the type of training year was given by the platoon.

Wild Bison Zoo-keeper

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — A little bit of the old west lived again in the west end of Little Rock for a few fabled hours yesterday.

A 2,000-pound bison named Joe rammed through a wooden door and into the zoo, stampeding over a well-traveled street, and found freedom himself for more than an hour.

With zoo officials in hot pursuit, Joe cut a merry, wild path through the municipal golf course and the yards of some anxious residents of the neighborhood.

Joe caused mothers to yell and fathers to curse as he charged through the city streets, scattering children and keeping a wary eye out for the shaggy brute, a familiar sight to most of the kiddies.

Mediators to Try Aluminum Talks

By JACK LYNCH
PITTSBURGH (AP) — Federal negotiators are expected to make an attempt soon to revive contract negotiations in the three-day strike of 28,000 members of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America against Reynolds Metals Co.

Union and company spokesmen say they are ready to resume contract negotiations but neither side has contacted the other since the strike began.

In Washington, Joseph Finnegan, director of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service, said last night, "We probably will be in on it."

Separate contract talks between the union and Alcoa and Reynolds broke off early Wednesday in a dispute over wages and other contract terms. The union set up picket lines at 12 Alcoa and Reynolds plants.

Although the Supreme Court is in summer recess, one justice is available and could issue a stay order, the Democrat was told.

A statement last night by President Cecil R. Edmonds that Southland "would like to" open court action to prevent the picket line, was interpreted as a threat to the strike.

Questioned as to whether Edmonds said "nothing is definite" and "it is possible," he said, "It is possible."

Opposition to the track faced anew almost immediately. At Little Rock, state Revenue Commissioner J. Orville Chumley, who is ex-officio secretary of the Arkansas Racing Commission, said that he would not issue a license to the commission would oppose an Aug. 22 opening.

Edwin Dunaway, a Little Rock attorney who represents opponents of the track, said he would not issue a license to the commission would oppose an Aug. 22 opening.

Spring Hill Is Making Plans to Incorporate

Vance Marcum of Spring Hill revealed today that steps were being taken to incorporate the community of Spring Hill into the town of the second class.

Mr. Marcum, a leader of the Spring Hill area, is Democratic Central Committeeman from that township. He said that other leaders of the area were taking the planning, and that steps were being taken to incorporate the town as soon as possible.

Spring Hill is located in south Hempstead County near the site of the new Highway 10. It is a small community of about 100 people, mostly from Texas, Arkansas, and Missouri.

At the end of the 30-minute trial, McKee's defense was Lt. Gen. Lewis B. (Chesty) Puller, who called the tragedy an "unfortunate accident" but defended the sergeant with all his strength for the type of training year was given by the platoon.

Clear Legal Path for Dog Racing Is Reported

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Southland Racing Corp. was reported today to have a clear legal path to the opening of a dog track on the old track on Aug. 23 until the Arkansas Supreme Court interjects.

Only a stay order from the high court could prevent the planned opening, the Arkansas Democrat said.

An unidentified source was quoted as saying that Southland had a bona fide permit from the Arkansas Racing Commission and Arkansas courts could do nothing about it.

Although the Supreme Court is in summer recess, one justice is available and could issue a stay order, the Democrat was told.

A statement last night by President Cecil R. Edmonds that Southland "would like to" open court action to prevent the picket line, was interpreted as a threat to the strike.

Marine Case Is Turned Over to Jury of Seven

By H. D. QUIGG
PARRIS ISLAND, S. C. (UP) — The case of Sgt. Matthew K. McKee, was turned over to a jury of seven combat officers today to decide whether he is guilty of manslaughter or the victim of an "unfortunate accident" in the death march drowning of six recruits.

The most celebrated military trial since that of Billy Mitchell was placed in the hands of the court at 2:30 p. m. EDT today.

McKee, 31, a former junior drill instructor from Worcester, Mass., who led a recruit platoon into a tidal creek in which six recruits drowned, was calm and collected in the presence of enlisted men.

His defense contends he was merely carrying out a tradition in leading his "jagged" platoon on a grueling night training march in the swamps of Parris island.

McKee's defense lawyer, Lt. Col. Lewis B. (Chesty) Puller, who called the tragedy an "unfortunate accident," but defended the sergeant with all his strength for the type of training year was given by the platoon.

The law officer, Navy Capt. Irving N. Klein, ended the trial case of McKee, saying the law officer "told them to 'reach your findings' according to the law, the evidence, and your own conscience."

At the end of the 30-minute trial, McKee was found guilty of manslaughter and sentenced to 15 years in prison.

Mediators to Try Aluminum Talks

By JACK LYNCH
PITTSBURGH (AP) — Federal negotiators are expected to make an attempt soon to revive contract negotiations in the three-day strike of 28,000 members of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America against Reynolds Metals Co.

Union and company spokesmen say they are ready to resume contract negotiations but neither side has contacted the other.

In Washington, Joseph Finnegan, director of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service, said last night, "We probably will be in on it."

Separate contract talks between the union and Alcoa and Reynolds broke off early Wednesday in a dispute over wages and other contract terms. The union set up picket lines at 12 Alcoa and Reynolds plants.

Although the Supreme Court is in summer recess, one justice is available and could issue a stay order, the Democrat was told.

A statement last night by President Cecil R. Edmonds that Southland "would like to" open court action to prevent the picket line, was a threat of a new threat of court action to prevent the picket line.

Questioned as to whether Edmonds said "nothing is definite and nothing is certain," he said he would like to open Aug. 25, "if it is possible."

Opposition to the track faced new almost immediately.

At Little Rock, state Revenue Commissioner J. Orville Chumley, who is ex-officio secretary of the Arkansas Racing Commission, said that he would like to open court action to prevent the picket line.

Clear Legal Path for Dog Racing Is Reported

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Southland Racing Corp. was reported today to have a clear legal path to the opening of a new dog track on Aug. 23, 1956, at the Arkansas State Fairgrounds, Little Rock.

Only a stay order from the high court could prevent the planned opening, the Arkansas Democrat said.

An unidentified source was quoted as saying that Southland had a "house fine" permit from the Arkansas Racing Commission and Arkansas courts could do nothing about it.

Although the Supreme Court is in summer recess, one justice is available and could issue a stay order, the Democrat was told.

Experiments on Melons Shown
at Hope Station

Farmers and farm leaders from Southwest Arkansas visited the Fruit and Truck Branch Experiment Station Thursday and Friday August 2 and 3, to observe the work being done on watermelons.
Over 110 were in attendance.
The visitors saw fifty six different breeding lines of watermelons, both in the field and on display, as well as commercial lines varying in size from three pounds to seventy pounds when ripe. Many shapes and colors were on display.
Some with yellow rinds and red flesh while others had a green rind with white flesh and green flesh.

Dr. V. M. Watts, Head of the Department of Horticulture and Forestry, University of Arkansas,
College of Agriculture and Home Economics and breeder of the Station, including information on the new variety, "Whitechop" that was released last spring.
Dr. George Broadway, Assistant Horticulturist, University of Arkansas, College of Agriculture and Home Economics, brought the visitors up to date on the latest fertilizer work with watermelons.
A disease control program was presented by Dr. J. P. Fulton, Associate Professor of Plant Pathology of the University of Arkansas,
College of Agriculture and Home Economics. The control of insects injurious to watermelons was another topic of vital interest to the growers by Dr. T. F. Leigh, Assistant Entomologist, College of Agriculture and Home Economics.
The old watermelons from the Station's advanced breeding lines were enjoyed by all.

Wild Bison
Buffaloes
Zoo-Keeper

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — A little bit of the old west lived again in the west end of Little Rock for a few fabled hours yesterday.

A 2,000-pound bison named Joe rammed through a wooden door of his cage at the zoo, stampeded into a well-traveled street, and found freedom himself for more than an hour.

With zoo officials in hot pursuit,
Joe cut a merry, mad dash through a municipal golf course and the yards of some anxious residents of the neighborhood.

Labeled as dangerous by zoo officials, Joe caused mothers to shout and fathers to yell as they children inside and keep a wary eye out for the shaggy brute, a familiar sight to most of the daddies.

One other bison who followed Joe through the hole in the door was recaptured in a matter of moments.

When Joe finally was corralled by weary policemen, there were injuries and only minor damage was a few nibbled bushes.
Many people faced the prospect of meeting Joe with guns, rather than fear. When the police took over the chase about a half-mile from the zoo the streets were clogged with cars.

Close the way and we'll chase him up Hayes street," shouted Assistant Chief E. G. Smith while Joe grazed idly on a vacant lot.
Police armed with rifles, sticks, stones and clubs gave chase.

Joe responded amiably, trotting away from the horse until he finally found himself at home, behind the zoo gate.

Mass., who led a recruit platoon into a tidal creek in which six recruits drowned, was calm and imposing in the presence of announced men.

His defense contends he was merely carrying out the Marine tradition in leading his "aggard" platoon on a grueling night training march, the swamps of Parris island.

McKoon's defense was led by Lt. Gen. Lewis B. (Chesty) Puller, who called the tragedy an "unfortunate accident" but not a crime.
He defended the sergeant with all his strength for the type of training year was 44, compared with 40 at the same time last year.

Benton county had three of the cases. Nearly 2 inches of rain fell in some places, flooding streets and buildings and forcing family evacuations. Denver City officials have estimated total rainfall at more than a million gallons.

It was warm and humid along the Gulf Coast with a flow of warm air from the Gulf of Mexico. In the South, there was a general warming trend.

Scattered showers fell during the night in the central and northern plains and eastward to the Mississippi Valley and westward through Montana and Oregon.
Nearly 2 1/2 inches of rain fell in six hours at Huron, S.D., with the 24-hour total measuring 3.89 inches.

Joe responded amiably, trotting
away from the horse until he finally found himself at home, behind the zoo gate.

Mediators to Try
Aluminum Talks

By JACK LYNCH
PITTSBURGH (AP) — Federal mediators are expected to make an attempt soon to revive contract negotiations in the three-day strike of 28,000 members of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America against Reynolds Metals Co.

Union and company spokesmen say they are ready to resume contract negotiations but neither side has contacted the other.

In Washington, Joseph Finnegan, director of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service, said last night, "We probably will be in on it."

Separate contract talks between the union and Alcoa and Reynolds broke off early Wednesday in a dispute over wages and other contract terms. The union set up picket lines at 12 Alcoa and 8
Reynolds plants.

Although the Supreme Court is in summer recess, one justice is available and could issue a stay order, the mediator was told.

A statement last night by President Cecil R. Edmonds that Southland "would like to" open court action to prevent the picketing, was a new threat of litigation to prevent the picketing.

Questioned as to whether Edmonds said "nothing is definite and the possibility of Spring Hill is a long way off," he said, "It is possible."

Opposition to the track faced snow almost immediately.
At Little Rock, state Revenue Commissioner J. Orville Chumley, who is ex-officio secretary of the Arkansas Racing Commission, said that he would not issue a license to the track.

Edwards, already fighting in the courts to preserve the franchise it gained through a court order, has built a million dollar track at this point, Arkansas city.

Clear Legal Path
for Dog Racing
Is Reported

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Southland
Racing Corp. was reported today to have a clear legal path to the opening of a dog track in Little Rock on Aug. 23, until the Arkansas Supreme Court interjects.
Only a stay order from the high

Arkansas courts can do nothing to halt it.

Experiments on Melons Shown at Hope Station

Farmers and farm leaders from Southwest Arkansas visited the Fruit and Truck Branch Experiment Station Thursday and Friday August 2 and 3, to observe the work being done on watermelons.

Over 110 were in attendance. The visitors saw fifty six different breeding lines of watermelons, both in the field and on display, as well as commercial lines varying in size from three pounds to seventy pounds when ripe. Many shapes and colors were on display. Some with yellow rinds and red flesh while others had a green rind with white flesh and red flesh.

Dr. V. M. Watts, Head of the Department of Horticulture and Forestry, University of Arkansas, College of Agriculture and Home Economics and breeder of the watermelon, explained the work at the station, including information on the new variety, "Whitechance" that was released last spring.

Dr. George Bradley, Assistant Horticulturist, University of Arkansas, College of Agriculture and Home Economics, brought the visitors up to date on the latest fertilizer work with watermelons.

A disease control program was presented by Dr. J. P. Fulton, Associate Professor of Plant Pathology of the University of Arkansas, College of Agriculture and Home Economics. The control of insects injurious to watermelons and another topic of vital interest to the growers by Dr. T. F. Leigh, Assistant Entomologist, University of Arkansas, College of Agriculture and Home Economics. The old watermelon from the Station's advanced breeding lines were enjoyed by all.

Wild Bison Buffaloes Zoo-Keeper

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—A little bit of the old west lived again in the west end of Little Rock for a few fabled hours yesterday.

A 2,000-pound bison named Joe rammed through a wooden door and into the street, stampeding over a well-traveled street, and found freedom himself for more than an hour.

With zoo officials in hot pursuit, Joe cut a merry, wild course through the city, stampeding over a municipal golf course and the yards of some anxious residents of the neighborhood.

Labeled as dangerous by zoo officials, Joe caused mothers to take their children inside and keep a wary eye out for the shaggy brute, a familiar sight to most of the kiddies.

One other bison who followed Joe through the hole in the door was recaptured in a matter of moments.

When Joe finally was corralled by weary police, there were injuries and only minor damage was a few nibbled bushes.

Many people faced the prospect of meeting Joe with guns, rather than fear. When the police took over the chase about a half-mile from the zoo, the streets were clogged with cars.

Close the way and we'll chase him up Hayes street," shouted Assistant Chief E. G. Smith while Joe grazed idly on a vacant lot.

Police armed with rifles, sticks, stones and clubs gave chase.

Joe responded amiably, trotting away from the horse until he finally found himself at home, behind the zoo gate.

Weather in Most Areas Is Pleasant

By The Associated Press

Pleasant summer weather prevailed today over most of the Northeast and the Far West, but scattered showers were in prospect for other sections of the country.

Skies were clear and temperatures in the 80s and 90s in the Northeast and the eastern half of the Ohio Valley, readings were 4 to 6 degrees lower than 24 hours earlier.

There was a general warming trend in the central part of the country from the western Great Lakes region through the upper and middle Mississippi Valley and the northern and central plains.

500 on Strike at Little Rock

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—The 500 employees who opened a sudden strike today at the Little Rock, Ark., plant of the Pullman-Standard Corp. here yesterday are facing a court order to remove their picket line.

The walk-out started, Pullman-Standard said, after the company refused to bargain with the union.

The union followed a charge by the company that the union was conducting mass picketing and that it was in violation of the National Labor Relations Act.

Union officials early today had received no formal notification of the court order and moved ahead with plans to picket for the second day. They denied that there was any mass picketing or violence on the picket line.

Elvis the Pelvis May Be the Unrecognized Hero of America's Greatest Need at the Present

By Hal Boyle

NEW YORK (AP)—Curbsome comments of a Pavement Ploater, "There is a saying that times of great trouble create great heroes. Elvis Presley is the hero of the hour. He is the greatest present need—someone to restore sex to its proper perspective."

Marine Case Is Turned Over to Jury of Seven

By H. D. QUIGG

PARRIS ISLAND, S. C. (UP)—The case of Sgt. Matthew K. McKee was turned over to a jury of seven combat officers today to decide whether he is guilty of manslaughter or the victim of an "unfortunate accident" in the death march drowning of six recruits.

The most celebrated military trial since that of Billy Mitchell was placed in the hands of the court at 2:30 p. m. EDT. McKee, 31, a former junior drill instructor from Worcester, Mass., who led a recruit platoon to a death march in the Gulf of Mexico, was charged with manslaughter in the death march drowning of six recruits.

His defense contends he was merely carrying out a tradition in leading his "ragged" platoon on a grueling night training march in the swamps of Parris Island.

McKee's defense lawyer, John J. McKeown, said McKee was a "good soldier" who was "killed" by the tradition of the "death march."

The law officer, Navy Capt. Irving N. Klein, ended the trial case of McKee, saying the law officer "told them to 'reach your findings' according to the law, the evidence, the court, and your own conscience."

Experiments on Melons Shown at Hope Station

Farmers and farm leaders from Southwest Arkansas visited the Fruit and Truck Branch Experiment Station Thursday and Friday August 2 and 3, to observe the work being done on watermelons.

Over 110 were in attendance. The visitors saw fifty six different breeding lines of watermelons, both in the field and on display, as well as commercial lines varying in size from three pounds to seventy pounds when ripe. Many shapes and colors were on display. Some with yellow rinds and red flesh while others had a green rind with white flesh and red flesh.

Dr. V. M. Watts, Head of the Department of Horticulture and Forestry, University of Arkansas, College of Agriculture and Home Economics and breeder of the watermelon, explained the work at the station, including information on the new variety, "Whitechop" that was released last spring.

Dr. George Broadway, Assistant Horticulturist, University of Arkansas, College of Agriculture and Home Economics, brought the visitors up to date on the latest fertilizer work with watermelons.

A disease control program was presented by Dr. J. P. Fulton, Associate Professor of Plant Pathology of the University of Arkansas, College of Agriculture and Home Economics. The control of insects injurious to watermelons and another topic of vital interest to the growers by Dr. T. F. Leigh, Assistant Entomologist, University of Arkansas, College of Agriculture and Home Economics. The old watermelon from the Station's advanced breeding lines were enjoyed by all.

Wild Bison Buffaloes Zoo-Keeper

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—A little bit of the old west lived again in the west end of Little Rock for a few fabled hours yesterday.

A 2,000-pound bison named Joe rammed through a wooden door and into the zoo, stampeding over a well-traveled street, and found freedom himself for more than an hour.

With zoo officials in hot pursuit, Joe cut a merry, wild path through the municipal golf course and the yards of some anxious residents of the neighborhood.

Labeled as dangerous by zoo officials, Joe caused mothers to take their children inside and keep a wary eye out for the shaggy brute, a familiar sight to most of the kiddies.

One other bison who followed Joe through the hole in the door was recaptured in a matter of moments.

When Joe finally was corralled by weary police officers, there were injuries and only minor damage was a few nibbled bushes.

Many people faced the prospect of meeting Joe with guns, rather than fear. When the police took over the chase about a half-mile from the zoo, the streets were clogged with cars.

Close the way and we'll chase him up Hayes street," shouted Assistant Chief E. G. Smith while Joe grazed idly on a vacant lot.

Police armed with rifles, sticks, stones and clubs gave chase.

Joe responded amiably, trotting away from the horse until he finally found himself at home, behind the zoo gate.

State Has Nine New Polio Cases

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—Arkansas had nine new cases of polio for the week ending Saturday, the State Board of Health reported today.

The figure was one above the eight the previous week and below the 10 new cases the corresponding week last year. The total in the state to date this year was 44, compared with 40 at the same time last year.

Benton county had three of the new cases, while Madison county had two, and Clay, Logan, Scott and Jefferson counties had one each.

Six of the nine cases were paralytic and three non-paralytic.

There was a general warning trend in the central part of the state since Sunday, mid-July, in the form of rain. The rain was heaviest in the northern and central Atlantic Coast states and the eastern half of the Ohio Valley, readings were 5 to 6 degrees lower than 24 hours earlier.

Marine Case Is Turned Over to Jury of Seven

By H. D. QUIGG
PARRIS ISLAND, S. C. (UP)—The case of Sgt. Matthew K. McKee was turned over to a jury of seven combat officers today to decide whether he is guilty of manslaughter or the victim of an "unfortunate accident" in the death march drowning of six recruits.

The most celebrated military trial since that of Billy Mitchell was placed in the hands of the court at 2:30 p. m. EDT. McKee, 31, a former junior drill instructor from Worcester, Mass., who led a recruit platoon into a tidal creek in which six recruits drowned, was calm and imperturbable in the presence of an enlisted man.

His defense contends he was merely carrying out a tradition in leading his "ragged" platoon on a grueling night training march, the swamps of Parris Island.

McKee's defense was presented by Lt. Gen. Lewis B. (Chesty) Puller, who called the tragedy an "unfortunate accident" but defended the sergeant with all his strength for the type of training year was given by the platoon.

The law officer, Navy Capt. Irving N. Klein, ended the trial case, saying McKee was "a small man in a big job."

At the end of his 30-minute "instructions to the jury," the law officer told them to "reach your findings according to the law, the evidence, and your own conscience."

THE BEST CROWD TO FOLLOW IS THE CROWD GOING TO CHURCH

THERE'S NO EVIL THERE EXCEPT WHAT YOU CARRY WITH YOU

"Teach Me To Pray"

Lord, you made me in your own image, and I am glad. You have given me dominion over land, and sea, and sky... made me steward over it all. Help me to be worthy of Thy trust. Master, you have even urged me to shoot for the moon, and land my atomship on the outer firmament of space. Dear Lord, this is too much unless you go with me all the way. I need Thy help. Sometimes I almost forget about my church—my pastor—my family and my friends. Oh God! cleanse me just now. Use ME to help Thy children make a new discovery in the realm of the spirit. Dear Master, raise me up and show me how to release the tremendous power of prayer... how to show Thy children the way to the New Life in God. Give us this secret, gracious Father, ere we die! Teach ME to pray. Amen"
